THE IMPORT TRADE OF AUSTRALIA.

Senator Pulsford writes:—Amongst the many attempts now being made to mislead the electors, perhaps the most gross is that in connection with the imports into Australia. As everyone is aware, the very basis of Mr. Chamberlain's scheme is the growth of British exports to British colonies and the decline of British exports to foreign countries. Now it is said, by Mr. Deakin and Mr. Wise, that British exports to Australia are not growing, but falling off, and it is further stated that foreign imports are growing rapidly. The figures that are given are perfectly accurate, but taken as they are, out of their true connection, they become grossly misleading. We are told that between 1891 and 1901, imports from Great Britain fell one million, and that imports from foreign countries increased five millions.

Look first of all at the complete figures of Australian commerce:—

	1901.	1902.
Imports from Great Britain	£25,349,000	£25,349,000
Imports from Foreign Countries	£25,349,000	£25,349,000
Exports to Great Britain	£25,349,000	£25,349,000
Exports to Foreign Countries	£25,349,000	£25,349,000
Total	£50,698,000	£50,698,000

The first thing to note is that an excess of imports has been converted into a marked excess of exports. The change represents a difference of about nine millions sterling. It is evident at once that the fall in the value of imports from Great Britain is not due to a fall in the quantity of goods imported, but to a fall in the price. Every business man throughout the length and breadth of Australia knows how big the golden stream of borrowed money has been, and to what comparatively small dimensions it has dwindled to-day. We can look at the matter in another way. The imports of 1901 included goods to the value of £25,349,000, and the exports of 1901 included goods to the value of £25,349,000. Goods unpaid for and loans mean one and the same thing. The Government of which Mr. Wise is himself a member is desperately anxious to obtain a few millions of pounds of goods from the United Kingdom. The British capitalists could easily run up the total of British exports to Australia by millions if they would only accept promises to pay instead of payment. Mr. Wise and his colleagues are prepared to accept a large amount. Their offers are declined, and now we have Mr. Wise talking about a decrease of goods from Great Britain.

The effect of loans upon British exports to the colonies is very transparent and very important. Look at these figures, which are official:—

	Five Years.	Five Years.
Imports from Great Britain	£25,349,000	£25,349,000
Imports from Foreign Countries	£25,349,000	£25,349,000
Exports to Great Britain	£25,349,000	£25,349,000
Exports to Foreign Countries	£25,349,000	£25,349,000

"Loans" mean public and private. Imports from Great Britain are not falling off, but are increasing. It is almost staggering to think that Australia owes the United Kingdom more than three hundred million pounds for goods which she has not paid for. But now when the Government of Great Britain has called a halt, that politicians should point to the lessened stream as evidence of British decadence is surprising beyond measure.

Then as to the growth of the imports from foreign countries. The public are expected to believe that foreign countries are taking Australian business away from Great Britain, and patriotic feelings are appealed to on the subject. But like the child of ten to a fevered brain is the application of the simple and incontestable facts of the case to the statement in question. In the first place, it will be observed that whilst the imports from foreign countries have grown from £5,000,000 to £14,000,000, the exports to foreign countries have grown from £14,000,000 to £25,000,000. Why is there this silence on this point? If foreign countries buy increasingly large quantities of Australian produce, may they not export to Australia increasingly large quantities of their own goods? But the figures in question are only a stepping-stone—an introduction—to the truth as regards the real position. A very large proportion of the goods imported from foreign countries are re-exported to the United Kingdom. The goods are sent there to find markets. The export returns of the United Kingdom show that, roughly, about one-half of the Australian goods imported from foreign countries are re-exported to the United Kingdom. When all the purchases of Australian goods are added together it will be found that foreign countries bought to the extent of £12,000,000 and re-exported to the United Kingdom to the extent of £12,000,000. Thus, then, is the truth, the substantial position, with regard to the trade between Australia and foreign countries. Let there be no mistake about it. The trade between Australia and foreign countries is a trade in which Australia is the loser. The trade between Australia and foreign countries is a trade in which Australia is the loser. The trade between Australia and foreign countries is a trade in which Australia is the loser.

There is one very pleasing feature in the table that has been given; it is that Australian exports increased by more than 15 millions in the ten years. It is this increase of exports that has sustained, and even increased, the imports. Producing commodities and selling them in the home market is better than borrowing money from the United Kingdom and sending it to the United Kingdom. It is the line along which the future of Australia lies. It is the line along which the future of Australia lies. It is the line along which the future of Australia lies.

The "Daily Mail" reports that the Princess Alice, wife of Prince Frederick of Schlesburg-Waldenburg, has been missing from her home since the 10th instant.

The "Daily Mail" states that it is believed that the Princess Alice has eloped with her coachman.

The Princess Alice of Schlesburg-Waldenburg is a Prussian Princess, the daughter of Duke Carl, Duke of Mecklenburg, and Frederick, the Prince of Schlesburg-Waldenburg. She is 27 years of age, and was married to Prince Frederick of Schlesburg-Waldenburg on April 20, 1897. There is one child of the marriage, Prince Charles Leopold, born on June 1, 1902. Prince Frederick is 30 years of age. His family are Lutherans, but two years before his marriage he joined the Church of Rome.

FRANCE.

THE FOREIGN SITUATION.

ARBITRATION WITH BRITAIN.

LIMITATION OF ARMAMENTS.

LONDON, Nov. 24.

M. Delcasse, the French Minister for Foreign Affairs, speaking in the Chamber of Deputies last night, advocated effective control by the Powers in Macedonia, such as Russia and Austria were endeavouring to establish. France, he said, would always support them in the execution of reforms.

Referring to the Arbitration Treaty with Great Britain, M. Delcasse said that formerly England and France saw those things which united them. (Cheers.)

M. Hubbard moved a resolution inviting M. Delcasse to arrange with other nations a limitation of armaments.

M. Delcasse replied, "Your estimates of late years have been lowered. Acts are more than words. It is not incumbent upon us to take the initiative."

An amendment approving of M. Delcasse's reply was carried by 400 votes to 60.
